Southside tired of subsidizing Northside

I support the notion of developing an efficient transit system in our city, but as a Southside resident I adamantly oppose the proposal as depicted in The Star on Dec.13.

The proposed routes can be evenly divided with the Southside comprising the bottom third, the Northside the middle third, and the top composed of Noblesville, Carmel, Fishers and Westfield. Those northern communities also get multiple dedicated transit lines accessing the heart of Indianapolis while the entire Southside gets one.

I don't bemoan the fact that the Northside is composed of relatively wealthy families who are free to invest in improvements to their infrastructure. But I resent being forced continually to subsidize amenities for the northern communities, which I have little access to.
